Introduction

Accredited eLearning programme to deliver the recently published 5th edition of the UK Forestry Standards (UKFS).

Overview in brief

Unlock the secrets of sustainable forestry management with our comprehensive online course tailored to the UK Forestry Standard (UKFS) 5th Edition. Whether you're a forestry professional, an environmental enthusiast, or a student eager to deepen your understanding, this course offers a rich and engaging learning experience.

The finer details

The programme breaks down the 5th edition of the UKFS into bite-size chunks of information using words, graphics, animation and video to enable forestry professionals to learn the key elements of the standard without having to read through the 128-page manual. There is also the option for virtual engagement for those looking for a more immersive experience.

The programme has 8 modules – in line with the 8 chapters of the UKFS.

Who should attend?

Anybody working within the Forestry and Arboriculture sector and communities.

What will be covered?

This eLearning programme will give learners an understanding of the purpose, scope, structure and application of the UK Forestry Standard, its role in setting out the approach of the four governments of the UK, defining requirements and providing guidance on how to practice sustainable forest management and how it provides the basis for supporting regulatory processes, assessing compliance and operating grant and voluntary certification and quality assurance schemes.

The eight chapters of the UKFS will be delivered via modules developed by eLearning specialists, and written by a technical authoring team, with special expertise in forestry.
